

Resources for Images of God

from Canon Wendy Claire Barrie

For context, these were shared in the 2023/24 Inquirers' Class on the same topic:

- Dr. Osman Umarji on why our perception of God matters
- The Rev Dr. Wil Gafney on the God of Many Names
- My blogpost on talking about God
- Searching for a Jesus Who Looks More Like Me by Eric V. Copage
- God in Feminine Form by Daneen Akers

Bible Project began as a crowd-funded nonprofit video series in 2014 with the intent of changing how people read and use the Bible. The founders take the view that “the Bible is a unified story that leads to Jesus”, which is not how I view Holy Scripture, so I always note that when sharing their videos. Here is the video Canon Linzi shared on the character of God, and here's the one I used on God's name.

Disidentify is the powerful sermon for the second Sunday in Lent I referenced by Josh Hosler, rector of The Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd in Federal Way.

What the early church thought about God's gender is a short but good read.

Canon Rich referenced Catholic priest, contemplative, and theologian Richard Rohr and his book The Universal Christ. This is just one of his daily meditations that touches on being made in the divine image.

Canon Rich and I are both big fans of Roman Catholic feminist theologian Dr. Elizabeth Johnson. The Case for God-She is an article she wrote in 1993 that's still relevant to the conversation.
