Resources for Listening to God's Call in Scripture

from Canon Wendy Claire Barrie

- For context, here's Canon Linzi's homily on God's covenant with Noah from Sunday 2/18 and mine about the Gospel of Mark from 2/11.
- Here's a quick look at what we mean by hermeneutics and why it's important to know through what lens(es) you read scripture.
- The SBL Study Bible (NRSVue) is the one I'm so excited about!
- Wait, why is there an updated edition of the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible? Read this.
- This helpful article tells how to choose a study bible and provides insights on translations.
- Biblical scholar Jennifer Bird's book, Permission Granted: Take the Bible into Your Own Hands and her videos are terrific, especially if you grew up with a literal view of scripture.
- Episcopal priest, Womanist theologian, and Hebrew scholar Wil Gafney talks honestly about troubling scriptures in this episode of the Evolving Faith podcast. (Wil Gafney came to Saint Mark's in December. You can view her workshop here and her sermon here).
- This offers a quick overview of Peter Gomes's classic, The Good Book: Reading the Bible With Mind and Heart, from which I quoted.
- Jewish New Testament scholar Amy-Jill Levine has an excellent new book on the Gospel of Mark.
- Here's what the Episcopal Church says about the Apocrypha. You may be interested in this longer article explaining why we value these books.
- Episcopalian and contemplative practices teacher Lindsay Boyer provides simple and clear instructions for lectio divina and Ignatian meditation with scripture passages, sometimes referred to as imaginative prayer.
